Summer Session Prestige Raises, Say Officials

Summer school studies in Torrance are no longer falling in the "vacation" or "dumbbell" variety.

This is what Torrance school officials told members of the Torrance Educational Advisory Committee Monday at the group's monthly meeting. The topic was "The New Look in Summer Schools."

Today's summer schools are designed to help bright, average, and slow students in subjects of interest or need, according to Mrs. Trudy Aldershof, summer school director. This year, about one-third of the number of students on regular sessions are enrolled in summer school.

Summer classes are an extension of the regular school year, Donald Duncan, Riviera principal, said. The six-week sessions are designed to give children the necessary skills, attitudes, and social ability to get along as adults. A good academic program generally will keep the attendance high, he noted, with children enjoying their learning.

Teachers also get a chance to try out new methods and varied programs during summer school, he noted with many of these continued into the winter term.

On the high school level, there are two programs designed for students who need to make up work, for those who want to "explore" certain subjects, and for extra-bright students. Leonard Linton and Willard Morgan, summer principals at Torrance and South High, reported.

In Torrance high schools, summer attendance is about 18% over last year. Some 2500 students are enrolled, representing about one-half of the regular school year attendance. 1225 students who will enter high school for the first time this fall also are enrolled.

A total of 46 courses are offered for high school students this summer, the principals reported. The libraries are open during the summer.

Harbor College Dean Explains Test Plan

"Entrance tests required of everyone who intends to enroll as a regular day student for the coming fall semester at Harbor College will be given only on eight dates between now and Sept. 3," William H. McMasters, Dean of Admissions and Guidance, explained today.

"We are unable to give the tests after Sept. 3 because of increasing enrollments and the impossibility of processing late examinations by Sept. 13, the last registration date for day students," McMasters added.

Entrance-guidance examinations consists of a series of tests covering general college ability and takes approximately 3 1/2 hours to complete. No preparation is required, and the results are discussed during the guidance interview, which is arranged by the applicant with a counselor.

The individual interviews emphasize vocational counseling, indicate current trends in various occupations, and provide additional information through the college occupational library.

The entrance test schedule is as follows: Wednesday, July 20, 6 p.m.; Tuesday, July 26, 8:30 a.m.; Friday, Aug. 5, 1 p.m.; Saturday, August 13, 9 a.m.; Friday, Aug. 19, 8:30 a.m.; Monday, Aug. 29, 6 p.m.; and Saturday, Sept. 3, 9 a.m.

"Anyone who wishes to take the tests should call the college admissions office at Terminal 4-8581 for a specific appointment for one of these dates," McMasters said.

Veterans attending evening college on veterans' bills, as well as all regular day students, are required to take the examinations.

Summer Students Hold Convention

Practicing politics along with the activities of the Democratic and Republican conventions, a class of summer students in Arlington Elementary school are holding their own political conventions.

Included in their social studies work, the sixth and seventh graders of Miss Dorene Rodecker's class are studying American government. Since this is an election year, they are studying government procedure by imitating it.

The class Democratic convention is taking place simultaneously with the Democratic convention in Los Angeles. Two weeks later, when the Republicans meet in Chicago, the students will hold their Republican convention.

Debates are scheduled to take place in front of large bulletin boards depicting the leading figures of each political party. The class is doing research on the platform and leading personalities of each party. Spelling words studied come from terms associated with politics.

Two class members, Cheryl Morris and Kathy Vess, won tickets to the convention through their Girl Scout troop. They plan to take pad and pencil to the Sports Arena when they attend. They will give the class a first hand report and will write up the event for the school paper.

Handicapped Man Receives Award for Contribution

Rollie Ellis Dye has been awarded a citation for meritorious service by the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped, according to a joint release by the Torrance Lions Club and the Torrance Chamber of Commerce.

Lions Club President Ralph Morris said they will honor Dye at their regular luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Palms Restaurant. Invited to present the award will be John B. Clark, Chairman of the Governor's Committee for Employment of the Handicapped. Attending also will be Vice President Bill Shawger of the Torrance Chamber of Commerce, who sponsored Dye for the National Award.

The citation is awarded for "exceptional contribution in furthering the employment of the physically handicapped."

Dye was employed as shop foreman by H & W Manufacturing Co. of Torrance at the time of his nomination.

Paul Diamond is Chairman of the event, officials added.
